

Dear child,

I know you more than you think. I knew you even before you were formed in your mother's womb. I am the creator of you. I saw every stage of your life... I know the nights you cried quietly, I know the moments you felt broken inside, I know the times you felt like nobody understood you.

But tell Me...what are you running after in this world? Everything here will one day fade away. I did not create you just to suffer, carry burdens, and die. I created you to live forever with Me in love. That's the true purpose of your life.

But to be with Me in heaven, you must be holy and free from sin. I know humans are weak and cannot become sinless on their own. That is why I am here to help you dear. No matter how many times you fall, if you truly repent, I will forgive you, cleanse you, guide you, and slowly lead you into a sinless life.

And I want you to know this very clearly....."I LOVE YOU SO MUCH, MY CHILD. I WANT TO LIVE WITH YOU FOREVER IN LOVE."

Do not be afraid. I am always with you. Even when everyone leaves you, I will still hold your hand. Leave your past to Me, I can heal every wound and give you a new beginning. And do not fear your future, because I am already there, preparing peace, hope, and beautiful things for your life. Come... walk with Me. Talk with Me, laugh with Me, cry with Me. Tell Me everything. You are never unwanted or unloved. You are precious to Me more than you will ever know.

I want to tell you again that I am God... and I am truly in love with you. I loved you even before this world began. Even if you walk away from Me many times, I will still come looking for you. I will never stop loving you.

Let Me tell you a story... maybe through this, you'll understand My heart a little more.

There was a man named Jehovah who fell deeply in love with a girl named Ruhamah. She lived a broken and immoral life, searching for temporary love, money, and attention from others. Yet, knowing everything about her past, Jehovah loved her unconditionally. He asked her to leave that life and marry him, promising her a new life. She agreed, not because she truly loved him, but because she wanted a better life. Jehovah knew this and knew she might leave him someday, but he still chose to love her. At first, they were happy, and they had a baby boy. But slowly, Ruhamah returned to her old sinful life. Jehovah found out, and his heart broke silently. Eventually, she left him and their children and returned to the streets. She enjoyed money, luxury, and the attention of other men, while Jehovah's heart was breaking. Their home felt empty, and every corner reminded him of her. Still, he never stopped loving her. He watched over her from far away, secretly making sure she was safe and had food. When others used and abandoned her, he helped her and even asked her to come back, but she rejected him again. Even when she returned to him only because she needed him, he was simply happy to have her near him.

Later, Ruhamah left again and went to another town, believing she no longer needed Jehovah. For a while, she lived comfortably, but slowly that life destroyed her. She was cheated, beaten, tortured, and treated like a slave. She was left without food or water and suffered so much that she even thought about ending her life. Jehovah watched everything, still waiting for her to understand his love. Then one day, the people who had her decided to offer her as a human sacrifice for money. Ruhamah finally realized how deeply she had sinned and how she had abandoned the one person who truly loved her. Jehovah immediately ran to save her. He begged them to release her and even offered them money, but they refused. Finally, he said, "Take me instead. Let her go. I will die in her place." And he gave his own life to save her. When Ruhamah learned what he had done, she finally understood how deeply he loved her and how much pain he had silently carried for her. After everything she had done, he still chose to die for her. From that day, Ruhamah completely changed, never returned to her old life, and carried Jehovah's love in her heart until her last breath.

My child... just like Jehovah loved Ruhamah, that is how exactly I love you too. Even when you sin... even when you walk away from Me... even when you choose other things over Me... I still love you. And even if you get lost far away from Me, I will still come searching for you again and again until I find you.

With Love,
God
